OBITUARY

JOHN AVERILL SHIELDS

Residents of Deseronto heard with sincere regret of the death of John A. Shields, who passed away at his home on Thomas Street last week. He had not been in the best of health for the past few months but all had hoped he would be around in his usual good health in the spring.

The late Mr. Shields had not lived in Deseronto many years as he came in 1939 but he had taken an interest in the affairs of the church and town and thus became well known.

He was born at Markdale on January 29th, 1871, son of the late John Shields and his wife, Margaret Averill. He received his early schooling at Manitowaning and attended Owen Sound Collegiate. He taught school at Manitowaning for a few years and then went into the confectionary business. It was there he met and married Levina Watson in August 1896.

He joined the Provincial Police Force shortly after and was stationed at Manitowaning, Sudbury and finally at Capreol where he remained until he was superannuated in 1938. After spending a year in Ottawa he came with Mrs. Shields to Deseronto in 1939 and settled on Thomas Street. He was a lover of flowers and spent much time in his garden. He was on the Town Council for three years giving up last fall due to ill health. He was an active member and warden of St. Mark's Anglican Church also of the Lawn Bowling Club.

Besides his widow he is survived by two daughters and five sons.

Mrs. W. M. Myles (Irene) Ottawa; Mrs. W. Crabbe (Kathleen), Little Current, Manitowling Island; John Arthur, of Sturges, Michigan; Whitney J. of Brantford; Fred W. of Sudbury; Brock M. R.C.A.F., Patricia Bay, B.C. and Edward D. R.C.A.M.C. somewhere in England. One sister, Miss Sadie Shields, Hamilton, two brothers, Arthur of Hamilton and George D. Shields of Vermilion, Alb.

The funeral took place from his late residence on Thursday afternoon to St. Mark's Church where Canon C. E. S. Radcliffe, rector, conducted the service.

Shields, Sturges, Michigan, A. W. Shields and Miss Sadie Shields, Brantford, Dr. J. C. Cochrane, Secretary of Pensions for the United Church of Canada and Mrs. Cochrane, the latter a sister of Mrs. Shields.

The remains were placed in the vault of the Deseronto Cemetery until spring.

Squadron Leader Stewart has received an honorable discharge from the Service. He served overseas for two years before coming to Camp Mohawk and it was while there that he met Mrs. Stewart. They were married in England.

Squadron Leader Stewart was engaged in farm work before enlisting and expects to take up the work again in the west.

Killed in Crash

Sincere sympathy is extended to Sgt. Grundy and family in the death of their son, Pilot Officer D. H. Grundy, R.C.A.F., who lost his life when the Kittyhawk fighter plane crashed near Whinnock, B.C., about ten days ago.

The body was found wedged in the cockpit of the wreckage of the plane when the government snagboat Sampson, under Captain Thomas Hirst, raised it to the surface. A diver located the wreckage buried in the mud at the bottom of the river.

Sgt. Grundy is stationed at Camp Mohawk and resides with his family on Main Street.

The body of the young flier was brought east to Kitchener where the family formerly resided and also buried there.

Sgt. Grundy and family spent last week at Kitchener and attended the funeral.

We regret that the name of little Miss Margaret Potter was omitted from the list of prize winners at the Ice Carnival last week. Margaret not only won a prize for her pretty costume but was the youngest skater on the rink.

Details have just been revealed of the British Hamlicar Glider, built to carry Tetrarch tanks and other heavy armour in support of airborne operations.

The Tetrarch, a very fast tank weighing over seven tons and with a cross country performance of 25 m.p.h., was designed specially to answer the need for an airborne tank. The Hamlicar Glider was "tailored" from the beginning of its design to fit around the Tetrarch.

It has also been extensively used in Allied Airborne landings to carry troops, guns assault craft and vehicles of all kinds.

Town Hall Now In Bank Building

During the past week, Mayor S. Wessman and members of the town council have received many complimentary remarks regarding the change over from the old Town Hall to the Bank Building, which will be known as the Town Hall in future.

The Montreal Bank closed its doors about 14 years ago and it was purchased by the town when word was received that it was to be sold to the wreckers.

The upper apartment is rented and it is expected that the jail will be moved to the basement later.

The old Town Hall was built around 1886 for a town hall about a year or so after the Town was incorporated. The upper floor was used as a lodge room for the I. O. O. F. until a larger Hall was needed. School classes were also held there when the Public School could not accommodate all. About 6,000 of a population being here when the town was first incorporated. H. R. Bedford was the first magistrate and served as Clerk and Treasurer until 1930 when he retired.

Miss M. Maher, who had been secretary to Magistrate Bedford for some time was then appointed Town Clerk a position she has held since that time.

The old Town Hall was well built and is still in good condition.

Paying 'Em Back

It was a wet, foggy night, relates the Christian Science Monitor. Outside the hall people were getting into waiting cars. Two women, uncertain as to the nearest bus stop, were anxiously looking up and down the street, when he walked up. The now-familiar service emblem shone from the lapel of his coat, which, like everything else he wore, shouted its showcasenewness.

"Won't you let me take you ladies home? My car is right over here."

The two women hesitated. "So many strangers—people just like you—used to give us lifts when we were in uniform. I'd like to pay 'em back."

The women smiled, nodded to each other, and followed through the fog to the waiting car.

No Oil Found In Deepest Hole

The deepest hole in the world has reached bottom at 14,696 feet after nearly two years of drilling, and a number of P.E.I. landowners who'd hoped for an oil boom have jettisoned their dreams of wealth down the shaft, says MacLean's Magazine.

On the strength of reports from an earlier drilling on Governor's Island, the "three-mile hole" was begun on Thanksgiving Day, 1943, on a man-made Island of logs, rocks and concrete in Hillsboro Bay, near Charlottetown. Interest, continent-wide at first, waned as months grew to years. One day this Fall City Service Company, Inc., began dismantling their equipment, writing finis to an experiment believed unique in the petroleum industry's records.

CHAPTER VII

At least, Gary told himself in the morning, he had this day. The sun was golden; the prairie blazed with bloom. Adelaide sang softly as she drove, and scolded every vagrant dog and jalopy driver that slowed down her skimming speed. Gary sat back and held his happiness close, keeping silence lest it burst before his eyes like the rainbow bubble that it was. No matter what came—he had this day. They had lunch at a little roadside place before they reached the city. Gary had some money. He insisted on paying for the lunch.

"You hunt the map, Gary. I'm going to buy some hats," Adelaide announced, when they had left the car in a parking lot.

"Remember, you haven't struck oil yet," warned Gary.

"Oh, but we will." She was coolly confident. "I'll wait in the car if I finish first."

Adelaide hurried away. She felt exhilarated and made over new.

Adelaide was feeling sober when she went back to the car and found Gary sitting there, studying the map that was spread across his knees.

"Put that away," she said abruptly. "Somehow I don't enthuse about oil, this minute."

"What happened? Did you get an extortion note?"

"Gary, there will be things like that—if we strike oil, won't there?"

"One oil well won't make you rich. Are all these things yours?" he asked as a boy stumbled up with an armful of bundles.

"Have him put them in the rumble. I didn't buy so very much. Just a few things I needed—three hats and a couple of dresses."

She saw Gary's face close up in a queer, withdrawn way. Men, she thought wearily, were so touchy. Just because she had bought three hats was no reason why Gary should be remote and silent for fifty miles. She grew a little snappish about it.

"You're not terribly entertaining, are you? I could have brought a wooden Indian along—after all, it's spring and all the little flowers are blooming."

"I know it's spring," said Gary, not looking at her. "And in Mexico it's summer!"

"I think," she said, grimly, "that you are being very obstinate to keep talking about Mexico, Gary Tallman. You know what a big innocent Dad is. If he sets his head about this oil business he's going to need somebody."

"He can hire oil men. The bushes are full of them."

"Do you have to be nasty?" demanded Adelaide, red spots riding up into her cheeks. "You could have talked all day and not said a thing like that."

"I'm sorry. I'm not being nasty. I'm simply facing things—as they are, Adelaide. If I have any influence with your father at all, I'll use it to try to persuade him not to wildcat a well down, if it turns out that there is oil under his land. He can lease and keep his royalties—and let somebody else take all the grief."

"He won't do it. He'll be excited and want to go after the oil himself—and then just anything can happen. Don't you like us, Gary? Don't you want to stay?"

"Great Scott, Adelaide—don't you know I like you—too much? And do you know how much money I've got at this moment?"

"I can't see what difference that makes."

"It makes a difference to me. I have exactly forty-one dollars. If I paid even a tenth of what I owe your family now—"

"Oh, my heavens, are you still thinking about that?" Adelaide demanded.

"Certainly, I'm thinking about it. I'd be a heel if I didn't think about it. And as for thinking about anything else—"

"What for instance?"

"A lot of things." He looked straight ahead, with his face set and a little pale. "Things I can't talk about—and can't even dream about!"

The geophysical crew arrived on Friday, and Mona Lee thought them a particularly grim and unfriendly lot. They said nothing except polite evasions; they treated Gary Tallman with condescension and Harvey they ignored till he took to stamping around the bed-room at night and barking.

"I can't get a thing out of 'em. I don't count. They go out there and monkey around and get into their car and drive off, and never even look back. I'm just the guy who owns the land. I'm the fellow who pays their bills. I've got a notion to hire some riggers and put me a well down anyway. Those guys can't see through the ground. They've got to guess—same as I have."

Future Fashion: Dresses of Glass

A United States Senate committee looked into the future recently and saw:

Women parading the avenue in spun glass or aluminum dresses, accompanied by gentlemen whose non-shrinkable, neper-to-be-shiny serge pants have a permanent crease.

Homes with windows of insulated glass that will cut the heat bill 50 per cent.

Pastel coloured glass kitchen sinks.

Neon lightning rods.

Bread made from sea water.

A life preserving quilt to take along on sea voyages.

A mechanical clock that turns out milk and fresh cream from a mixture of water, dried skimmed milk and butter.

Soybean shoe soles, slapped on at home and sealed with a hot flatiron.

No foolin', said a Senate Military Affairs Sub-Committee, all of these things are in the works. They are part of 839 new developments the committee listed in a 197-page printed volume about wartime technology.

How Can I?

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I remove perspiration stains from garments?

A. By mixing one part of oxalic acid to twenty parts of water and applying with a small brush.

Q. How can I clean light furs?

A. Rub thoroughly into the furs a mixture of 1 pint of flour, 1 tablespoonful of fuller's earth, and 1 pint of bran. Shake well and rub again with the bran alone. Then shake and brush with a soft clean cloth.

Q. How can I prevent ices and jellies from sticking to the mold?

A. Wrap a hot cloth around the jelly mold to make the ices and jellies come out without sticking.

Q. How can I easily clean white paint?

A. Water in which onions have been boiled is said to make an excellent cleaner for white paint.

Q. How can I loosen the dirt in clothes, and also make them whiter?

A. Pour a few drops of turpentine into the wash boiler and it will help loosen the dirt. A spoonful of borax in hot water and then added to the last rinse water tends to whiten clothes. Also remember that clothes dried slowly will be whiter than those dried quickly.

John 17: 20-23; Acts 15: 22-29.

Golden Text

We are laborers together with God. 1 Corinthians 3:9.

Christ's Prayer for His Own

John 17:20.—Our Saviour in His beautiful intercessory prayer, on the eve of Calvary, has made loving supplication for those who have believed His Word and received Him as the Son of God.

Those who believe give the Word of God to the world, and in so doing summon the world to believe on the Father and the Son.

The Power of Love

21-22.—Here, we have the Saviour's prayer and ideal for all who should believe on Him. As there is unity in the Godhead so our Lord prayed that there might be a similar unity and oneness among the body of unbelievers.

23.—It is by the indwelling of God the Father and God the Son who are one, and who dwell within the obedient heart, that believers will learn to dwell in oneness and love.

When God, who is love, dwells within us we cannot but shed forth the spirit of love toward all men.

First Church Document

Acts 15: 22-29.—Here we have the first mention of writing in the history of the Church. The letter contains (1) kindly greetings to Gentile brethren; (2) a strong repudiation of the Pharisaical Jews who had gone from Jerusalem to Antioch and interfered with Gentile liberties there, and the statement that a deputation who really represent the views of the Jerusalem Church are sent; (3) a full recognition of the authority of Barnabas and Paul by the apostles of the circumcision; (4) a declaration that circumcision is not necessary to salvation; and (5) prohibitions which enjoined abstinence from certain practices in which heathens indulged.

The prohibitions were concessions demanded from the Gentile Christians for the purpose of preserving peace, unity, and social intercourse between Jews and Gentiles, and also of protecting converts from the results of heathen associations and habits.

Blood was forbidden to the Jews by Levitical law, therefore in churches composed of both Jews and Gentiles social and brotherly intercourse would be impossible, unless the latter abstained from it also. "Meats offered to idols" means the flesh of animals offered in sacrifice, a portion of which was eaten in sacrificial feasts, and other parts were sometimes sold in open markets.

It has been estimated that there are still 6,000,000 slaves in the world.

CHRONICLES of GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

Our immediate household has been reduced to three again. With Partner able to get around once more to help with the chores and milking it was hardly necessary to have three men at home to run a hundred acres. There is still a dearth of farm help so it was certainly no trouble for young John to get another job—and right in our own neighborhood too, which suited him fine. Son Bob has also been working—that is from nine until five each day—tractor-ploughing for one of our neighbours. And Partner and I have been right into the chicken business, killing and dressing a few each day so as not to make it too tiring for Partner. Even at that it was tiring enough. Personally, I don't mind being tired just so long as we get those noisy strutting roosters off the farm. "The female of the species" may be "more deadly than the male" but at least she is not so insufferably pretentious and vain. To hear the cocksure crowing that emanates from our rooster pen you would think the crazy things were telling the world they were our main source of income. They help, of course, but I'm telling you we earn every cent we get for our dressed chickens.

And that, by the way, is the only time I like roosters—when their feathers are off and in place of birds we have dollar bills. And I am also pleased when they tip the scales at anywhere from six to eight pounds with firm, white flesh one knows will make good eating. You know, it is possible to get a lot of satisfaction from the knowledge that one has turned out a good product.

Rather a funny thing happened on one of our chicken picking days. We had just finished weighing and pricing five birds for a private sale when in came a truck with our order of potatoes. There were five bags of the murphies and the price for the five bags was a little less than our price for our five chickens. I said to Partner—"Now, which line of produce do you suppose brings in the best returns?"

Well, sir, we thought and we talked, but we haven't got the answer yet. Partner thinks there are too many angles to consider for a definite conclusion to be possible. There are so many "ifs". If it is a poor season then potato crops are light; if disease attacks young chickens then losses are heavy. If ... if ... so many ifs!

But I do know one thing—at least potatoes can't crow, and they don't scratch in the flower beds or sneak around to roost on the front doorstep to the embarrassment of the owner.

But then potatoes have bugs—and they have to be hoed and hilled—the potatoes I mean, not the bugs. They must be "dropped" in the spring, "picked" in the fall, sprayed or dusted, sorted and bagged and looked over carefully for signs of dry rot, ring rot, wet rot and scab.

Figures can't supply the answer to my question. Figures can only go so far. You can't estimate in dollars and cents the value of carrying water to your chickens, or the difference in hoeing potatoes in wet or dry seasons. So there you are, friends, and if you would like to start an argument in your family circle, or among your neighbours, try that one. And I would just love to know the result.

"W. G."—thank you very much for your kind letter—it was just about the nicest piece of "fan mail" that has come my way. Your encouraging comments were certainly appreciated and it will give me much pleasure to answer your letter personally in the very near future. I shall also be happy to send you the information you requested.

Here is a thought that is worth considering. I was listening to an address by Mr. Walter S. Woods given to the Canadian Club, Toronto. His subject was "Rehabilitation". He spoke of the idea that seems to be pretty general these days of the need for readjustment to living by returned men. "But" he said, "it may be that readjustments are necessary on our side." There is something in that, isn't there? There is surely room for readjustment when our sons who went away as boys come back to us grown men, with a knowledge and experience of life—and death—far beyond their years and of a nature that we, in our time, will never know.

The most important industries of the Netherlands are shipbuilding, machinery, textiles including rayon, and chemical products.

RELAXING CONTROLS

Do we realize that Canada's cost of living has risen less than that of any other country? Canadians are the best fed people in the world. Because of everyone's co-operation, our government was able to subsidize essentials such as milk and oranges, making the necessities available to all. One hears on all sides: "The war's over now. Why doesn't the government get busy and remove these controls?" But are we, the people of Canada ready for the lifting of controls?

Through disciplined use of controls comes our opportunity to show that our patriotism is not a feeble flame but a burning passion. Our dollars, properly spent, can help to build confidence, enterprise and national security. So shall such a spirit grow within all Canadians that, when controls are relaxed, there shall have been bred in us the consciousness of our individual responsibility in our country's economy.

Canadian Leader In Origin of FAO

The Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, commonly called the FAO, which has just finished its first world conference in Quebec City, grew out of an idea expressed in the Atlantic Charter of a peace "which will afford assurance that all the men in all the lands may live out their lives in freedom from fear and want".

The next step was in May 1943, when 44 united associated nations were invited by the President of the United States to send representatives to a conference on food and agriculture at Hot Springs, Virginia. The Conference lasted from May 18 to June 3. Canada took a leading part, and among the delegates from all the nations were some of the best-known world authorities on agriculture, food, and nutrition. The delegates made recommendations with respect to dietary standards, agricultural production, marketing, distribution and other matters relevant to attaining their goal of freedom from want. Being convinced that the recommendations could be carried out only through a permanent world body working in co-ordination with other international organizations, the delegates recommended that an Interim Commission should be set up to formulate a specific plan for such an organization.

On July 15, 1943, six weeks after the end of the preliminary conference, the Interim Commission headed by L. B. Pearson, now Canadian Ambassador to the United States, began its work in Washington. So effectively was the work done that on October 16, 1945, the permanent Food and Agriculture Organization came into being, and with the signatures of the allied and associated nations, the work of the Interim Commission automatically ceased to exist.

Annual Convention Of Presbytery Here

The Annual Convention of the Lennox and Addington District of the Belleville Presbytery of the Y. P. U. of the United Church of Canada met in the Deseronto United Church on Wednesday, November 14th beginning at 6.30 p.m. with a supper meeting.

About 100 were in attendance with Mr. Maurice McLeod presiding.

Before leaving the tables, greetings were received from Mr. Don Williams, President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, Y. P. U.; Mr. Earl Dafoe, President of the Belleville Presbytery, Y. P. U.; Mr. Ray Gunsobus, Business Manager of "The Quinte Broadcast".

These were followed by a sing-song, led by Mrs. Wightman, of Newburg.

After a period of 45 minutes which was occupied with Fellowship Groups, the Company assembled in the Church.

After a brief business session, the report of the Nomination Committee was read and adopted.

Mr. Don Williams installed the new officers. Mr. Maurice McLeod, as president and Miss Vivian Henderson as Secretary.

Miss Mabel Archer, of Trenton, gave a splendid report of the Ecumenical Conference which had been held in Whitby, early in the Fall.

Then Rev. J. D. Martin, of Trenton, gave the Theme address on "Youth and the Crusade for Christ".

The Convention was brought to a close with the singing of the Hymn "Rise Up, O Men of God" and the benediction by Rev. William Parker, of the Bay Pastoral Charge.

There is no way to control the atomic power we have harnessed, unless we give God the reins.

Oddly enough we will never win the human race unless we stop trying to get ahead of each other.
